4.11 Political Activity

As a non-profit organization that works closely with both federal and state agencies and employees, regardless of the current administration's or elected official's political affiliation, it is important that the Center maintain a good relationship with government agencies and officials, regardless of party affiliation, and not be seen as endorsing, or opposing, one political party over another. Employees may engage in partisan political activity only in their non-duty hours and when doing so must represent that their political statements and activities are their own and do not represent the Center. Employees who run for partisan political office while an employee of the Center may do so only insofar as it does not conflict with their employment with the Center. Employment in the Center will not be offered as a reward for political activity.
